

A Song, 'Abundance in Millets' Featuring PM Narendra Modi Nominated for Grammy 2024

A song on millets (Bajra) featuring our honorable Prime Minister Narendra Modi has been selected for the Grammy Awards 2024 to be held in Los Angeles. The song highlights the unknown health benefits of this nutritious cereal along with the government's efforts to promote it.

The song, 'Abundance in Millets', sung by Indian-American Grammy-winning singer Falguni Shah (Falu) and her husband & singer Gaurav Shah was released in June this year.

Falguni told the media that the idea to compose a song on millets came when she met PM Modi in New Delhi last year after winning the Grammy Awards. She added that it was PM Modi who asked her to write a song to raise awareness of the super-grain as another potential key to reducing world hunger and uplifting humanity.

The song celebrates '2023' as the International Year of Millets, which was declared by the United Nations in March 2021. The proposal was brought forward by India and supported by Members of the UN's Food & Agriculture Organization (FAO) Governing Bodies & the 75th Session of the UN General Assembly.

It is worth mentioning that the Modi government has been promoting millet as a nutritious cereal, highlighting its advantages and how it can help alleviate poverty. Millet was also part of the menu of PM Modi's State Dinner when he visited the US.
