The startup has developed an integrated online platform to provide post-harvest services to farmers. It provides services such as decentralized storage facilities, post-harvest credit, market linkages, and primary processing to farmers at village level in a backward area.

They provide decentralized storage facilities at the village level through GramHeet Mandi (Village Trade Center), where farmers can store their produce at affordable costs. Farmers get a digital receipt against their produce along with a quality analysis report.

GramHeet provides instant credit to farmers against the stored produce at GramHeet Mandi (VTC) that helps them deal with immediate cash needs. They have associations with financial institutes like “Kudos—an NBFC.”
